You did not list this but I was appointed to this and have been attending most meetings to which invited, quarterly meetings of the Charity and intermittent meetings of the education grants committee. The charity is providing grants to very needy individuals and also providing affordable housing of a high standard at its almshouses in St Clements. It is very useful to see where the city council could be helpful to individuals and to contribute to decisions on grants

I met with the regional director, Dr Andy Brown, and had a wide ranging discussion on heritage and conservation issues relating to Oxford. Overall I get impression that English Heritage is impressed with our partnership work with the local heritage amenity groups such as the Oxford Preservation Trust and that as a local authority we are seen as an exemplar of good practice in this area of work.

I have had notice of their meetings and managed to attend 2 or 3 in the course of the year – a valuable group but whose meeting times tend to clash with other meetings such as North Area Committee. Promoting tree planting by children and individuals, thoroughly good for our carbon footprint.

The Oxford Hub is a dynamic and effective organisation and its work encouraging students to volunteer is benefiting people in Oxford and beyond.

When the Hub started out it was mainly focussed on international development. It, however, now runs an increasing number of projects within the local community that benefit those in need with the city. This provides a great and expanding opportunity for fruitful co-operation between OxHub and the city council.

Clash of meeting times has meant that my attendance has been less than perfect. I have now attended a couple of meetings. Glen Cook is another OTC member attendee.

An essential requisite of attendance in membership of OPT is full membership which might deter some OTC members who could not/would not afford the subscription. The topics central to OPT link closely with development & environment in Oxford. Very helpful.
